

But council divided on issue

$100,000 Civic Center expansion gets nod

PLEASANTON — Pleasanton's new Civic Center is only 18 months old and it is already bursting at the seams.

Monday night, the city council authorized staff to begin preparing plans for a $100,000 expansion to that Bernal Avenue facility.

As an interim measure, the council also authorized the lease of additional office space to house the city attorney's office.

Council opinions on both of those motions, which passed by 3-1 votes, were sharply divided. Councilman Bill Her-lihy opposed the proposed expansion and Mayor Ed Kinney voted no on the interim leasing of space. (Councilman Bob Philcox was absent.)

Additional office space is needed immediately. City Manager Bill Edgar explained, to provide space for the deputy city attorney who will be hired this fall.

In addition, Edgar said, the city hall was designed to house 37 employees and already holds more than 40. In the next five to ten years, he added, that number is expected to increase to 50.

Kinney was vehemently opposed to leasing space for the city attorney's office because he felt it would cost too much money and because he believes there is space available at the present city hall.

He suggested the deputy city attorney could utilize the small office presently reserved for the mayor and council. "Let's try it first," he said, "and then, if we find it impossible to squeeze another body in, let's look for leased space."

Edgar had estimated the lease of space would cost about $5,000 a year. He added, with the consolidation of the Pleasanton Justice Court with the Livermore Municipal Court, space might be available at the Justice Court facility for offices. (The city already leases the courtroom for use as a municipal meeting room.)

Councilwoman Joyce LeClaire said she had "problems" with Kinney's suggestion because city hall is "already quite congested." As for the council office, LeClaire added, "I personally have made much use of that office. It is helpful to have a place to meet people."

She emphasized to add another body into an area of city hall that is congested "will result in chaos and severely reduced efficiency."

Herlihy also disagreed with Kinney's idea but felt additional space might be available in other city facilities, such as Century House or the Corporation Yard.

His motion to table the matter for a more detailed report, however, deadlocked at 2-2.

Herlihy opposed expanding city hall because he believed the money could be better spent by beginning the permanent Civic Center complex. (Eventually, the city plans to construct a permanent complex and rent out the present city hall facility.)

LeClaire disagreed with that philosophy "I don't think we're going to be able to finance the 'real' Civic Center," she said. "I have a sneaking suspicion it is not going to be feasible."

LeClaire said she favored an expansion of the present facility but told Edgar, "When you look into an expansion, don't be so conservative" regarding the amount of space.

Kinney disagreed with that, saying, "If you build a big building, it will have a tendency to fill itself." Rather than evaluating the space needs, he added, perhaps the staff should "evaluate the need for eight additional employees."

The council also instructed the staff to determine the city's legal options in regard to liability posed by Santos Rancho Road.

Mayor Kinney reported he had talked with Alameda County Supervisors Don Murphy, who had said it would be "inconvenient" for property owners along that steep and winding road if the county were to install locks on a gate at the foot of the road.

Councilman Roger McIn said he was not satisfied with that response and asked City Attorney Ken Scheidig to look at the city's legal options. Kinney was the sole opponent to that motion.

County refuses to build public route

Gravel rigs jockey for private freeway access

An Interstate 580 interchange completed in 1971 for the express purpose of relieving Stanley Boulevard and related city streets from a heavy burden of truck and auto traffic is still being monopolized, four years later, by just two gravel firms that use that freeway access for their own competitive advantage.

Failure by Alameda County to live up to its part of that 1965 agreement with the State of California to provide "public access" to that interchange promises to compound the traffic problem, and leave heavy gravel rigs flowing through Livermore and Pleasanton at least until the year 2000.

Lone Star Industries Inc. and California Rock and Gravel Company have assured heavy truck traffic through the end of the century with their announced plan to undertake extraction from the 165-acre Nienburg Ranch, on the south side of Stanley Boulevard and mid-way between Livermore and Pleasanton.

That project will yield 24.5 million tons of sand and gravel, generating over two million truck trips, all of them down Stanley Boulevard and the bulk onto First Street through Pleasanton.

Such a massive flow of trucks onto city streets would be in clear violation of that agreement, reached in 1965 by the cities of Livermore and Pleasanton, the County of Alameda and the State of California, and which called for state construction of an interchange at El Chorro Road and Interstate 580. The county's part of that agreement was to develop "public access" from Stanley north to the freeway. That route would not only take all heavy truck traffic from the pits direct to the freeway, but was later used by East Bay Regional Park District as part of its plan for development of Shadow Cliffs Park. That public water facility, on the south side of Stanley, is attracting in excess of 200,000 visitors each year, many of them from out of the area. A rebuilt El Chorro Road would feed almost directly from I-580 to Shadow Cliffs.

COUNTY WON'T ACT

A study of the "Draft Environmental Impact Report" by the Alameda County Planning Department on the Lone Star-CalRock plan for the Nienburg Ranch reveals no mention of the added impact of truck traffic onto local streets. "Few (community) services are required for the sand and gravel operation" is that report's only acknowledgment that there would be any impact whatsoever on the cities of Livermore or Pleasanton.

Pleasanton felt otherwise some three years ago when it threatened to close off its streets to gravel truck traffic, citing "considerable evidence of damage" to those streets and noting the public uproar over a flow that reached "two trucks every minute" just along Santa Rita Road.

But the city was convinced to change its opinion by a cash payment of $30,000 from the gravel interests, along with their promise to establish retail sales offices within the city — a ploy to generate sales tax revenues of some $50,000 per year to the muni treasury.

But that was a "temporary solution" city officials now admit, "not designed to last forever." It will however prevail through the year 2005 if Lone Star and Cal Rock are allowed to proceed with that Nienburg extraction without provision of any other truck route.

Lone Star readily admits it "would welcome" any move to allow its trucks and customers direct access to I-580 that is now reserved just for Rhodes-Jamieson and Kaiser. "It adds another seven miles for our trucks" over and above the route to major East Bay markets now taken by Rhodes and Kaiser, explained Ralph Mitchell, a spokesman for Lone Star and a former member of the Pleasanton planning commission.

(Four years ago The Times learned that this longer trip was costing Lone Star and Cal Rock 49 cents per ton in additional transport charges. For the 24.5 million tons to be extracted just from the Nienburg Ranch, that added cost comes to over $12 million — and that would be at today's prices.)

The county's environmental impact report suggests there would be little adverse effect whatsoever from another major pit south of Stanley Boulevard, but it does offer one into the financial and political clout of that valley industry.

"Permits ... have been issued by Alameda County authorizing extraction of over 300,000,000 tons of sand and gravel ... from 2700 acres of land in the Livermore Valley," the planning staff notes. At today's prices, that means the gravel industry is taking in excess of one and one-half billion dollars from the heart of this valley.

Added to that figure can be the several hundred million dollars to be earned by converting some of those depleted pits to garbage dumps — a use that is being pushed aggressively by Kaiser, and of which the county planning director once said: "If that is an acceptable plan for filling the Kaiser pits, then it must be considered acceptable also for all of the other depleted gravel areas in the valley."

But nowhere in any of those proposals has anyone ever revived that promise of 1965 — to build a county road linking Stanley Boulevard to I-580, and thus lifting some of the traffic burden from the only route that now connects the core areas of Livermore and Pleasanton, and that also ties the valley populace to Sunol and Santa Clara County.

"There are no discussions or studies" relative to county action on a connecting link from Stanley to I-580, says Herbert Crowle, director of public works for Alameda County. That statement was made ten years after the county promised to "expedite the required planning" that would convert a major state interchange from a private freeway access, used for competitive advantage, to the public route it was always supposed to be.

—by John Edmonds

No end in sight

Gravel trucks clog downtown Pleasanton streets in a steady caravan that might now prevail through the end of this century. An alternate route from Stanley Boulevard north to I-580, promised by the county in a 1965 agreement, is now nowhere in sight.

CARD speaks out

Citizens blast 'dictatorial' redevelopment powers

Last of a series

Proposed plans of the Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency (PRA) have drawn fire from many residents and merchants as "dictatorial," impotent and certain to bring down property. "It's an attempt to fool the public," said Bernie Gerton, a downtown realtor and president of C&RD (Committee Against Redevelopment). "The agency is trying to sell the people one idea and the plan will do something else."

"When you tell people you're going to redevelop the downtown and then include the sports park because of public pressure, that's not in good faith," Gerton said.

He feels that the original plan, as forwarded by a citizen's committee consisting of downtown merchants and other interested individuals, was basically good, but was then radically changed by the city council.

"If they're trying to rejuvenate the downtown, why did they include arealike Harris Acres?" Gerton asks. He said the plan is simply a capital improvements program and should be referred to as such.

"I can't document this completely yet, but I've read the list of proposed redevelopment plans, and I don't think it will cut it. If people are going to be subjected to dictatorial controls for the next 45 years, they (the PRA) will have to prove they can raise property values and improve the city," Gerton said.

He was certain the plan would ultimately be rejected by the city council. "Hell no, it won't be approved. There're too many things wrong with it."

Wallace Mayer Jr., an accountant with offices on main street and also a member of CARD, challenged the power allotted to the PRA under its tentative charter.

"The redevelopment agency can seize property for the 'economic good' of the city as well as for improvements for the public good. The city can't even do that under present law," Mayer said.

He feels the PRA should have strict, definite goals to follow before the plan is formally approved in November. "They have none now," he said. "Their powers shouldn't be stronger than their needs."

"The PRA has a great deal of power. Over a period of 45 years, they could do anything. The agency's members and its staff will change several times in that period," he said.

Mayer offered a hypothetical situation in which the PRA could decide it wanted to build a shopping mall downtown using the power of the agency to buy property in the construction area. "They would be out of their minds to do it — but they could," he said.

"Businesses in the downtown district differ from the shopping center. There won't be any competition. Our district is composed of small shops and boutiques, while Stoneridge will house Capwell's and Penney's," Mayer said.

He said that many of the businesses on Main St. were professional offices that wouldn't compete with Stoneridge and didn't need traffic — or redevelopment.

Mayer said he liked the idea of tax increment financing but not the overall plan.

He wouldn't say he would favor the rejection of the plan when it comes up for consideration in November because he hasn't seen it in its final form.

"Basically the plan is a try to lessen the deficit in the capital improvements fund," Mayer said. "But the plan was supposed to have been thought out over a two-year period. Why is it being changed so much just recently if it was such a perfect plan?" he demanded.

(PRA Deputy Director John Bowling bowed to public pressure twice and removed several houses from the redevelopment project area. He said they were put there in the first place "to make the legal description easier.")

Other details of the redevelopment have drawn complaints from residents in the project area. These include conditional use permits, creation of design and upkeep standards, authority to acquire personal property, and requirement of builders to show construction or improvement plans to the PRA prior to building.

Several merchants have also expressed opposition to the plan. Don Henrickson, manager of Turner's hardware store, said, "Ist would definitely hurt us. Any increase in taxes will mean an increase in prices to our customers."

Don Wilhelm of Don's Casuals in Dublin agrees: "It will devastate business — it has everywhere else. I don't know why we should be any different. All you have to do is look at Sun Valley — the examples are right before us."

The plan will come up before the city council for final consideration in the middle of November. Questions or complaints should be directed to John Bowling in the city ofices building. Copies of the redevelopment plan and accompanying environmental impact report are also available in his office.

Beware Bicentennial bilkers

PLEASANTON—Two individuals, apparently soliciting Bicentennial funds, have not been duly authorized to do so, according to Pleasanton Police.

Lt. Dave Freeman of the police says that one group, seeking to paint red, white and blue curbside numbers, has an application on file but it has not been approved. One solicitor reportedly has been in the Valley Trails area claiming to represent the "bicentennial committee in the area."

A second agent, claiming to be with the Bicentennial Committee", was supposedly hawking novelties such as hair berets, handkerchiefs, necktie and pony tail holders.

The latter peddler could not come up with any identification when confronted by a Pleasanton resident.

The Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee notes it has no such representatives calling on any members of the community at this time.

Police nab two youths for thefts

LIVERMORE — Police arrested two 15-year-old boys last weekend following three residential burglaries in southwest Livermore.

Alex C. Conner, 74, Ben Samardich, a Lab employee, and Lewis Patterson reported burglaries totaling $215.

Conner told police $115 in cash was stolen from his home. Police found no signs of forced entry.

Samardich said some whiskey and cigars valued at $25 were taken by burglars who apparently entered through the bathroom.

A pocket tape recorder valued at $70 along with four cans of beer were stolen from Patterson's De Caen Ct. home.

Police do not release the names of juveniles.

Dance, concert set for youths in Livermore

LIVERMORE — A free concert on the grass is in store for local music lovers Sunday afternoon.

"Catalyst," a local group, will be playing at 2 p.m. Sunday at Oak Knoll Memorial Park (next to Granada High).

The same band plus another local group, "Billingsgate," will be playing at a teen dance Friday, Aug. 29, at the Recreation Center, Eighth and H Streets, from 9 p.m. to midnight.

The dance is open to all high-school students including incoming freshmen. Cost is $1.50 per person. There will be a door prize of two tickets to a Bill Graham concert.

CCC cancelled

PLEASANTON — The Aug. 28 meeting of the Community Concerns Committee has been cancelled. The next committee meeting will be held Sept. 25.

Valley obituary

Gary Gilchrist

Funeral services will be held Thursday for Gary Gilchrist, 20, a native of Pleasanton and apprentice jockey on the northern California race circuit.

He was killed Sunday in an auto accident in Sonoma.

He had been a jockey for a year and one-half and is the son of trainer Leon Gilchrist.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Gilchrist, San Mateo; a brother, Larry, of Oklahoma; and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McRae, also of Oklahoma. He also leaves several aunts, uncles and cousins.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, at the Patterson and O'Connell Mortuary, 1311 South El Camino Real, San Mateo.

Entombment in Cyprus Lawn Memorial Park, Colma, will follow.

Tommy Burkes, the driver of the car in which Gilchrist was killed, suffered minor injuries.

County board vet soon phased out

The Alameda County Board of Education will consider an amended reapportionment plan at their Thursday meeting.

Board members, chaired by Mrs. Virginia Birdsall of Livermore, convene at 8 p.m. in Room 24 of the County Education Center, 685 A St.

The board is under mandate to reorganize next summer with one valley position to be phased out. Reapportionment will create a new seat in Oakland.

Jack Hagerty of Pleasanton, who was awarded a ten-year service pin by the Board of Supervisors in July, will lose his position on the board because of reapportionment.

Also to be considered by the board are the county superintendent's policy on travel and expense reimbursement, approval to enroll certain pupils in Development Center and awarding of bid for Senior Boys' Camp. A bid to McClellan Construction, Inc. of Hayward was approved at the last meeting.

North I-580 group call meeting today

LIVERMORE — Progress reports on five vital areas will be delivered at today's meeting of the North I-580 Citizens' Group.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in Christensen School. Anyone concerned with the community north of Interstate 580 (the Springtown-Greenville-Proud Country areas) is invited to attend and babysitting is available.

Livermore eyes land use ideas

LIVERMORE — Alternate land use proposals will be reviewed at a joint planning commission-city council study session today with Livermore's General Plan consultants.

The meeting is scheduled at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Court Chambers, 39 S. Livermore Ave and the plans to be discussed may be seen at the city planning department (they were at the library from Aug. 14 to 18).

County libraries to close Mondays

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — A miscalculation in the amount of salary increases given county employees this year has resulted in the closure of county libraries on Mondays through the end of December.

That closure, which was approved by the Alameda County Board of Supervisors Tuesday morning, will affect Pleasanton and Dublin libraries and will go into effect this coming Monday.

The situation arose because the county budgeted only 10 percent for increases in salaries and fringe benefits this year and ended up approving increases totaling an average 13.5 percent.

That action left the county library system with a $70,000 deficit.

Head Librarian Barbara Boyd told the supervisors Tuesday reducing library service from six to five days throughout the county would be the most equitable means of making up the deficit. "It is important," she added, "that we not cut (service in) any city more than any other."

The supervisors unanimously approved the closure, which will be in effect until the end of December, because as Supervisor Joseph Bort put it, "This method is less onerous than any other."

A request from James Garrett, executive vice president of the Alameda County Taxpayers Association, to defer a $6 million allocation for the Hayward pre-trial detention center until next year in order to avoid a 13-cent tax rate increase this year was continued until next week.

The board is scheduled to adopt the 1975-76 tax rate on Tuesday.

Garrett said, since construction of the facility will not begin until early 1977, he believed the $6 million levy could be delayed at least a year "because you don't need the money right away."

The board pointed out, however, that the county is already $32 million short of the funds needed to construct both the Hayward and Oakland pre-trial detention facilities (and the Oakland court complex) and, if they acceded to his request, that figure would be increased to $38 million.

Garrett added the taxpayers association "does not intend to delay construction of this or any other properly needed projects" but he did not agree with the county's proposed deficit financing for the jails.

County Administrator Loren Enoch reminded the board the pre-trial detention facilities were not the type of program "that could be deferred indefinitely."

Referring to the county's outmoded and much-criticized Santa Rita facility, he said further delay may mean putting more money into Santa Rita and "every dollar you put into Santa Rita is wasted money."

Bort said he disagreed with Garrett's philosophy of deferring an expenditure that will be needed eventually. He characterized that as a "sedative" and said, "When we wake up next year, it will be that much harder."

Bort also said he believed the county will have a more difficult time negotiating wage settlements next year than they did this year and deferring the $6 million this year could result in an even greater tax rate increase for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Board Chairman Fred Cooper reminded Garrett that, although the $6 million won't be spent immediately, "it is not being wasted. Last year, we earned $16 million in interest on money set aside," he added.

In a related report, Enoch told the board he is recommending the $32 million deficit for the pre-trial detention facilities be made up through the sale of "long-term revenue bonds secured by the lease-purchase of the facilities."

The board directed the staff to authorize the architect to proceed with design of the two jail facilities and the Oakland court complex. The three are expected to cost nearly $52 million and the county hopes to begin construction in early 1977.

Water directors to inspect new Del Valle plant today

Zone 7 directors will preface tonight's regular monthly meeting with an afternoon field inspection of the once controversial Del Valle water treatment plant.

The $4.2 million plant is scheduled to be operational in mid-September, nearly three years after voters passed a hotly contested bond issue.

Completion of the plant will put an additional 9 million gallons per day of treated water "on line" in the Zone's system, allowing the water district to pump treated aqueduct water at a nine to one ratio with harder valley well water.

On days not pushing peak demand, 100 percent of the water sold to valley retailers will be treated, according to director of water resources Mun Mar.

Completion will mark the end of phase one of the Zone's Project II development.

While the plant originally was planned to treat much more water, certain equipment was deferred from installation. Should the need arise, directors can order installation of that equipment and boost the plant's output to some 18 mgd.

Major construction projects will allow the plant to treat 36 mgd.

Only $6.45 million of the authorized $8.2 million in bonds was sold. The difference was made up through water connection charges.

Citizens Against a Water Rate Increase (CAWRI) organized in 1973 to oppose the proposed bond issue, claiming the indebtedness would force up water rates. Attorneys for Alameda County argued the bond issue passed with 77 percent voter approval and was not subject to referendum.

Water delivery and capital improvements are kept in separate accounting categories. Mar said, where water must pay its own way.

Capital improvements are paid for from bond revenue and the Zone's property tax assessment.

Directors also will hear presentations on the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Urban Study, the Pleasanton

Plant Talk

By SUE JOHNSON

Talk to your plants? There are two schools of thought on this much-debated topic. I'm partial to the theory that if you meet their other requirements, plants don't need conversation.

However, if you enjoy this one-sided conversation, and don't feel ridiculous, by all means continue. Although it isn't necessary, it probably does no harm — and being involved with your plants is all-important. Given the shadowy possibility of the receptiveness of plants to sound, I expose mine to lots of music.

Richard Langer in his new book "Grow It Indoors" offers an interesting theory. He states that since we exhale carbon dioxide when talking, and since plants use carbon dioxide in the process of photosynthesis, talking to plants must be a help.

Only, of course, if we converse with our plants during the daylight hours when photosynthesis is underway. It is also necessary to become very intimate — at best we should be only six inches from our leafy friends. Oh yes! For real results, the monologue should proceed uninterrupted for four hours or more a day.

I have a weighty confession — I don't talk to my plants. I don't feel I have to because I meet their other needs. They know I care even though I don't tell them in words. (Sounds like a certain husband I know!)

League's not for women only

Hostess Jo Harding of Pleasanton welcomes Twilah McFarland and Florence Gordon of Livermore (at left), to the get-acquainted brunch which celebrated the institution of the League of Women Voters of the Livermore-Amador Valley twenty years ago. The brunch honored past league presidents, and featured the league's first prospective MALE member, Jim Trimmingham (below), who enjoyed the company of residents Dorothy Hudgins and Janet Newton, and member Judy Pickle. The discriminating clause barring men from membership was eliminated at the last national LWV convention, and the problem of the organization's now-inappropriate name will be tackled at the next national convention this spring. The league will study a topic of national scope, that of modifying the Presidency, in September sessions. Study topics of regional, county and local impact are on the agenda for the remainder of the year. For more information contact Membership Chairman Carol Gerich at 447-6250.

'Tis the season to freeze

When fruit is in season, we tend to eat it so often that we soon develop jaded appetites for it. Before this happens, freeze some fruit for appreciation months later.

For sweet, juicy cantaloup, select fully-ripe, but not soft ones. Look for these signs of maturity: Stem should be gone, leaving a smooth, symmetrical, shallow basin called a "full slip." (If all or part of the stem base remains or if the stem scar is jagged or torn, the melon is probably not fully matured.)

The netting should be thick, coarse and corky and should stand out in bold relief over part of the surface. Skin color, between the netting, should have changed from green to a yellowish-buff, yellowish-grey or pale yellow. Ripe melon has good aroma and yields slightly to thumb pressure at blossom end.

Do not freeze overripe melons — those with deep yellow rind, overall softness, watery tasteless flesh. For best quality, fruits frozen and stored at zero degrees in syrup or dry sugar may be stored up to one year.

A SECOND VEGETABLE AND FRUIT SWAP has been organized by the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club for Saturday, Aug. 23 at Pleasanton's Wayside Park. Junior Pam MacIver reaps her harvest of squash for the event. Home gardeners will swap or sell excess vegetables and fruits that would otherwise be wasted at the "open air market" from 1 to 3 p.m. To participate contact Pam at 846-9119 or Karen Barker at 846-4723 no later than today.

Litter in the city —where to start

The city council of Livermore deserves at least a one-gun salute for attempts at placing a ban on disposable bottles and cans as a local thrust against the onslaught of litter. But, even if such an ordinance were enforceable, it would not provide the answer to the garbage on our streets, and everyone knows it.

Let's face it, we are a sloppy nation. A byproduct of our affluence, some say. An inevitable consequence of that grandest of free enterprise teachings which dictates "Buy it new, wear it out, throw it away." We have been "throwing it away" with such reckless abandon in recent years that we might soon be swallowed up by our own mess.

While we spend billions in pursuit of "clean air," we are unwilling to spend even a little of our own energy in the quest of cleaner streets, a better place in which to live. No other animal in God's kingdom has so fouled his nest.

Don't blame General Motors for this one. Or even the Coca-Cola bottling company. It isn't bottles that make the mess; it's the people who throw them, abandon them, or even dump their garbage on the nearest "vacant lot." And this isn't West Oakland or New York's east side we're talking about. This is Pleasanton Valley with its $50,000 homes, lovely Granada in Livermore, delightful Silvergate in Dublin. Suburbanites need no teacher when it comes to spreading our mess across the countryside.

Local government could inspire us to some sort of anti-litter campaign; but it won't be accomplished just through ordinances, and turning cops into junk patrols. What we need is a concerted look at the total problem of waste disposal. We could begin with one very logical, very obvious step — make garbage collection mandatory for every home in the community. Put the bill on the tax rolls, if necessary. That would at least halt the use of vacant lots and rural roads as garbage dumps.

Then form teenage "Litter Patrols." Give the 13-year-olds something to do with their long, hot summer; and just maybe give them a sense of pride at the same time. It might even shame their parents into cleaning up the neighborhood.

Hindsight/Foresight

'One more time'

Media attention to and court procedures regarding significant cases of recent years continue to be suspect in this writer's opinion.

All are of considerable social import, though I'm not sure the major news media has seen fit to explore all facets.

We speak of the continuing court proceedings involving the student-Oakland National Guard clash at Kent State University in 1970, the gun or guns used in the Robert Kennedy shooting, the Charles Manson trial and the Joan Little trial. Of the four, only the last named is recent.

Basis for the Little trial was a sordid series of events that culminated in Miss Little being acquitted of all charges.

The significance comes from, apparently, the question of a woman's right to defend herself against attack ... as one wire service put it ... and the involvement of a black (Miss Little) and a white (the jailer who allegedly attempted the assault).

The pre-trial hoopla engendered by the defense threatened to turn the case into a circus, a sad commentary even for yet another case almost defiled by William Kunstler and the "Free So-and-so" sobs.

Fortunately, the case was completed in relative brief time with the jurors (6 whites and 6 blacks) coming forth with a speedy and unanimous decision.

The verdict will no doubt be a blow to the Angela Davis-Jane Fonda-SLA and Free George Jackson mob, who have tried their utmost to make every murderous thug into someone victimized by the "white capitalist pig society."

Sorry, gang, no martyrdom for Miss Little. Her consolation will be a speaking tour and if that sounds incongruous, join the club. She might even have to finish out her stretch after the lecture engagements!

The latest in the Robert Kennedy shooting appears to be a concerted attempt to find a second gun. The fact Sirhan Sirhan was placed in the kitchen of the Ambassador Hotel and seen firing a gun apparently has not tempered "conspiracy" theorists. Possibly the same people who hold JFK was the victim of a two or three-gun conspiracy are at work here.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Give me a candidate for the most hated man in the San Francisco Bay Area and I would be hard put to select a winning candidate.

There are a lot of potential winners, believe me. Joseph Alioto, the mayor of San Francisco, probably ranks high on the list of contenders.

Charlie Finley, owner of the current world's baseball champions, (assuming, of course the teams in Mexico and Japan could not beat the best of the United States of America has to offer) would come close to winning a lot of polls.

Any quarterback for any football team on any given Monday has got to be in contention after his team has lost a close one.

Johnny Miller, the lad who started the year by winning three consecutive golf tournaments and who has not won since, has to be a factor in the voting.

Al Davis, now the managing general partner of the Oakland Raiders whether Wayne Valley likes it or not, must be mentioned.

Dick Nolan, the bright, soft spoken and often cryptic coach of the San Francisco 49'ers, probably is a front runner.

But of all the candidates for the job the most unlikely in my mind, yet the most likely to be a finalist in the voting, is John Madden, the King Sized Squire of Pleasanton and about as successful a man at his trade as there is in all of the United States.

Madden, of course, is a winner, and on top of that is constructed by the grace of God and a good diet in a manner which would allow him to knock most of his critics galley west, as my dear, departed mother used to put it, if he so desired.

Naturally that makes the carrot topped king of Foothill Boulevard a prime candidate.

He is, on the record, one of the most, if not the most, successful coaches in the National Football League in recent years.

Which, of course, makes him fair game for a peanut brained moron who spends the week catching hell from his boss and needs an outlet for his unventilated emotions come Sunday.

One of these characters will sit behind me in section 310 of the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum this fall. He has a face which reminds me of my mother's tapoca pudding with a short beard.

His manners might be compared to those of a chimpanzee at a Ladies Aid social, though I am not at all sure that the chimp might not do better.

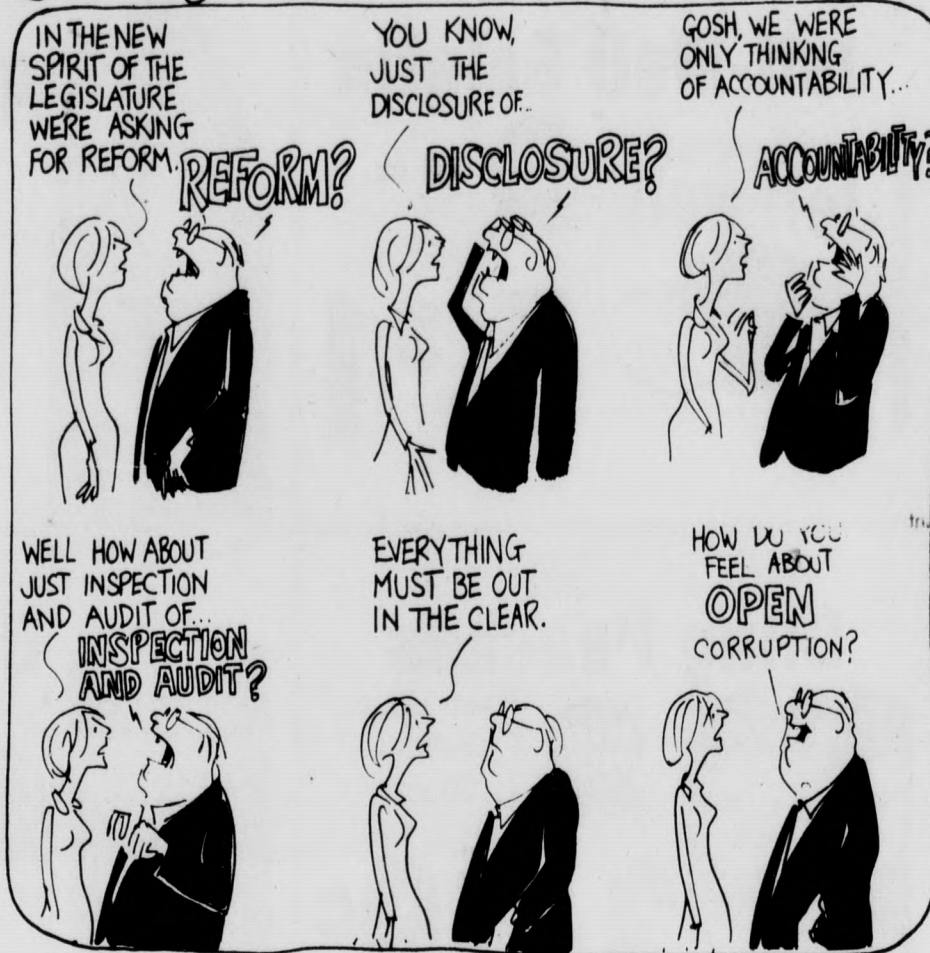

He is loud mouthed, arrogant, inconsiderate, sadistic, stupid and his grammar would not be considered acceptable at a meeting of the Brooklyn chapter of the boilermaker's union.

And his prime target at any football game in which the Raiders play is John Madden.

He calls the Squire of Pleasanton "useless, stupid, dictatorial," (although of course in shorter, earthier and less literate words and phrases) and suggests that he be sent to hell, Green Bay or the Baltimore Orioles, whenever the Raiders fail to gain less than five yards from scrimmage or do not complete a pass.

When George Blanda threw an interception during the

Letters to the Times

To bear arms

Editor, The Times:

A number of bills are pending in both Sacramento and Washington which represent a dangerous threat to our right to keep and bear arms — a right of the American people protected by our Bill of Rights.

The reason this right is so important is that arms in the hands of the citizenry constitute the ultimate protection against the tyranny of a totalitarian government.

All the arguments used to promote the Great Gun Grab have been exposed as so much hogwash. History shows no benefit from transferring arms from free men to their would-be rulers.

The only way to fight this movement is to write your representatives now, urging them to place themselves on the side of freedom for the individual by voting against any bill which would disarm the law-abiders.

Glenn Strahl

Livermore golf

Editor, The Times:

When paying out your hard earned cash, you want value received in return. You don't enjoy being hoodwinked by misrepresentation ... For instance, use of sewage expansion money, $300,000, for a 2 million gallon storage reservoir was used on Doolan Canyon road. Nothing was charged to the airport. The funds were a part of the $5.6 million sewage expansion fund.

The sewer plant was something of interest throughout the city and there was no reasonable excuse for the fraudulent claims. The airport and golf course were something else. Neither of them was a necessity but they followed on the heels of the sewer plant fiasco. They were both expensive playthings for the elite requiring considerable valuable land which had to be acquired. By having them city owned, the few users could have their fun while someone else had to dig up the capital even though they never flew a plane or played golf ...

They were both supposed to be gold mines for the community but it turned out that the community was the gold mine and the promoters kept digging for the payoff. The elite could save paying out the high cost of club dues and fees at Tony Romano and Frank Ivaldi's Sunol Club and Castlewood ... Warfield Enterprises petitioned the city to construct a full course at no expense to the city for construction, land or maintenance, 6/28/62.

The golf game is presumed to be an opportunity for physical exercise as well as enjoyment with a purpose. Those that need it most ride around in carts, have caddies to lug equipment, take a swim in the sludge and go for another ride again instead of chasing the little pill ... It is a diversion for the elite catering to a very small percent of the population, 2%.

T LARP recommended the purchase of the Wetmore Ranch 3/4/63 to obtain the 100 acres required. The appraised value called for $350,000 and it was purchased 5/20/63. Shirley was Mayor and it was planned to use City surplus funding, $205,500 sewer plant money and $144,500 from connection fees, another juggling of funds violation. These funds were a portion of the $5.6 million sewage expansion project and the law states that such funds should be used only for the purpose for which it was appropriated. Estimated installation was $10,000 per hole, $180,000, without any clubhouse or parking area.

Parness had established the cost at $219,785 but the installation was $182,000. They hoped for $70,000 in Federal money. Before the FAA could approve funds, bondsmen were required and the City of Livermore Recreation and Land Development Corp. was formed, 3/18/71. The owners were: Earl Duarte; Ed Runstrom; James Nordahl; Joseph Genoni and Joseph A. Schonone. They became responsible for a bond issue of $1,350,000.

Despite pouring large amounts of capital into this business for a Club House, Restaurant, etc., leasing it out without being able to collect the fees, remodeling and all that, it has been a constant loser since it was opened in April, 1967. Total deficit was $485,000 last year. Now it is said that it was poorly designed, and will cost another $5,000 per green to repair. Why take the trouble and expense when, if the airport boosters have their way, they will destroy six fairways?

Why do all of Parness' grandiose programs turn out to be flops?

Royalties Corps

Editor, The Times:

The Tri-Valley Royalties Drum & Bugle Corps wishes to thank you and everyone else who helped us with our first field show held last month at Livermore High School.

As you know, the Royalties just organized this year in the valley, and we hope to be well known throughout the state in another season.

Especially helpful in our field show event were the Livermore School District, Amador School District, St. Charles Borromeo Church, St. Augustine's in Pleasanton, First Presbyterian Church, Livermore Area Rec & Park District, Livermore Police Explorers Post, City of Pleasanton Rec Department, and Patricia Cooper, R.N.

The churches and schools provided housing overnight for the out — of — state corps that took part in the competition, and practice fields and were provided by the Park and Recreation departments.

Young people between 12 and 21 are invited to take part in our drum and bugle corps locally and can find us any Tuesday or Thursday practicing at 7 p.m. at Granada High School.

second quarter of the Raider's game against Pittsburgh on Saturday, he confided to the world that Blanda had once set an American Football League record for interceptions, not mentioning that when he did so Blanda was protected by the loudest line ever provided for a quarterback. (Not an Oakland line. The culprits live in Houston.)

When Blanda, on the next series of downs, tossed a 50 yard touchdown pass to a second year receiver and tied the game, the same laddie shrieked in disgust while the fans roared their approval of the almost 48 year old youngster who has revived hopes that the Fountain of Youth does still exist in many of us who are, in the words of John Edmands, on the bright side of 50.

"It wasn't so much," he roared, managing to make himself heard above the crowd. "Fer Chrissake, that receiver was so far out by himself I could have completed that pass."

All of that I could accept, though that strident, inarticulate and noisy bull horn of a voice that bounced between the ear drums of Skeeter and me, did little to make him attractive.

Madden is fair game.

After all it is only normal for the Monday morning morons who call themselves armchair quarterbacks to pick on a man like the Squire, whose record of success must make them steam on any evening when they are reminded by their better halves that half a man could put more bread on the table than they.

John has all but one quality to earn hate from the morons who prefer to criticize rather than do. His forearms are the size of a leg of lamb. His biceps would do credit to any beef shoulder. Huge triceps and deltoids rise across his shoulders and back and while his body no longer tapers down into the shape which once earned him the sobriquet of Whale while attending California Polytechnical College at San Luis Obispo, he still has a fi-

Round the town

Just when we are resigned to protecting the "Golden" side of California throughout these warm and cloudless months, the weatherman hits us with the big rainfall, in mid August. Like most Californians, our household is not prepared for such a watery surprise.

"It's raining," the female voice says from somewhere on the other side of the bed. I have just been having a dream scene with Zsa Zsa Gabor, but it is not Zsa Zsa's voice that is giving with the 2 a.m. weather report.

"Very hard," the voice adds. I know the tune from winters past. It is the first act of Cumulonimbus. What follows is a thunderclap of suggestions dealing with our ability to relate to said storm.

Sometimes she says nothing, nothing at all, and that is even worse. Like waiting for the other drip to drop.

"I suppose you want me to get up and see if the upstairs' windows are all closed," I say to the voice on the far side of the bed. Silence.

I stub my right foot (the sore one) on the bed frame whilst making my way into the stormy night. A suitable 2 a.m. expletive follows.

"You might as well turn on the light," the voice says. "I am awake now anyway." Regrettably, I am not.

"Check that front window and see if it's leaking again," the voice says as I depart on my appointed rounds. "There are some old towels in the back closet if you need them. But don't use the orange ones."

I fail to see what the color of the towels has to do with an emergency of this magnitude, but it isn't worth arguing with the voice. Mine not to reason why, mine but to do or die ... or stub my tender right foot again, which is even worse.

Have you ever noticed that the first rain of the new season always comes between midnight and 3 a.m.? It is one of the more fascinating meteorological facts of our time. I am thinking about doing a literary piece on same when I encounter the glass doors to the playroom. Which are closed. Another suitable expletive follows.

"Are you stumbling around there in the dark?" the voice asks. "Turn some lights on, for goodness' sake."

"The lights are on, for goodness' sake," I reply. "But I forgot to open my eyes." A man can't think of everything, at 2 o'clock of a dark and stormy morning.

The upstairs windows are open, all right, and so is the door leading to the upstairs landing. There is evidence of water on the floor, but I figure it will dry out by morning, when the chief inspector makes her rounds. No sense in opening up that towel-conversation again, not at this hour.

"Did you close all the windows upstairs?" she asks, as I return to the warmth of my bed.

"Yes, I closed all the windows upstairs," I declare, in my best monotone.

"And was the door to the upstairs landing open?"

"No, the door to the landing is not open," I reply. It is a fact of recent moment, which does not warrant any further explanation. Right now, sleep is of the upmost importance. Besides, Zsa Zsa is waiting. I try to remember where we left off.

"You'll have to get up early and check all the downspouts." I cannot believe that is Zsa Zsa talking. It is not. "You know how the first rain always clogs up the drains. Who would ever think we'd get this kind of a rain in mid-August?"

And in the middle of a man's encounter with Zsa Zsa Gabor, I want to add. But there are moments when silence is best. This, I decide, is one of them.

***

After a restless and fruitless night (Zsa Zsa flew the scene in search of drier dreams) I rise to the thrill of a morning romp across the roof top. It is my annual first-rain-of-the-season excursion.

"Be certain to wear tennis shoes," she says. "It can be terribly dangerous on that roof after a rain. I worry about you crawling around up there."

If she is so blessed worried, then why send me out there at all? Better to have a clogged downspout, than a clobbered Dadeo, says I. Gather the remains up off the patio. Don't send flowers ... its flora that got me into this mess in the first place.

We have one of those "lovely old two-story homes built around the turn of the century." Translation — wooden eaves troughs, downspouts always in the wrong places, water flowing uphill and into clogged corners. An architectural mess.

"You look absolutely soaked to the skin," she greets me, with a nice touch of sympathy. "Get into some dry clothes and I'll have your boiled eggs and tea waiting for you."

"Skip the eggs, and put a shot of brandy in the tea," says I. If I'm going to make like Admiral Byrd conquering the arctic poles, then I might as well be fortified accordingly.

— by John Edmands

gure which most men would envy.

And while his face may not be the one of which the average maiden's dreams are made, it belongs to a man, one who would prefer to accomplish something on his own than to criticize others.

He has been eminently successful and his wife is one of the most beautiful women I know.

For these reasons, if not others, he has earned the hate of any small minded Monday morning quarterback.

I can understand all of that and am sure John can rise above the criticism of such small minded and essential followers of the Oakland Raiders.

What I could not stand was to have this face full of jello pudding, this mouth without a soul, this body without a heart, stand up and cheer loudly when Terry Bradshaw, a fearless, noble and fleetfooted quarterback of rare and admirable ability, even though he play for the wrong football team, was injured, though not seriously, early in the second quarter (or was it the first) of Saturday's game in Berkeley.

Believe me, the oaf behind me was not alone. Fully a third of the crowd which must have totalled 60,000 people, cheered when Bradshaw was hurt.

I didn't see Madden clapping nor cheers on the Raider's bench. They would rather beat the best and Bradshaw is one of them.

But the creep with the plum pudding face behind me was having a fine time.

Which is why, perhaps, despite my deep admiration for Madden and his disciples, I have never become a complete Raider fan.

Even the rowdies in old Section S at Kezar stadium would never have cheered as did those oafs on Sunday.

Those did not deserve the Raiders.

Hell, they don't even deserve a ticket to a game played by the San Quentin varsity.

For Wednesday, Aug. 20, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today is the day to clear the air between you and a friend or relative. You can say what's on your mind and be correctly understood.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A rewarding day. You'll get recognition, as well as some material benefits. You deserve it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Aggressive action brings excellent results for you. Take advantage of this fortunate cycle in matters that really count.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're quite intuitive today in making changes to attain a desire. Trust your judgment. It won't lead you astray.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone will offer to team up with you on a project they've been developing. Pitch in. Two heads are better than one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take direct action at work or in any area where you have responsibility. It pays off today. Much can be accomplished.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone you're interested in romantically will be very responsive to your charming and gallant ways today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today, you can put into effect those changes you wanted to make around home. Your energies are intense, well-directed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A day when co-operation is at your beck and call. Ask for it. You'll receive the assistance or material you desire.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A small enterprise you're interested in on the side can make a profit today as long as you direct your energies toward it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may want to spark a little social activity today. You'll have to initiate it, but you'll have many willing accomplices.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll spring a surprise on the family today. It will go over big as long as you don't let the cat

Opening lead—Q ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South looked over dummy and thought, "Too bad North didn't respond one notrump. I would have put him in three which he would have wrapped up."

Then South got down to the really important problem. How was he going to make four spades. He started by playing dummy's king of diamonds. Maybe West had underled the ace. West hadn't and the defense played a second and third diamond. South ruffed the third diamond and played two top trumps. At that point he could play his ace of hearts, cash the clubs and lead a second heart. If either opponent had started with king-small or queen-small, he would have been end played. That didn't appeal. The hand looked like one with all suits breaking quite evenly, so South tried another line.

He cashed the clubs, stopping in dummy. Then he led a low heart. His plan was to finesse his nine and it would have worked except for one thing. East had been thinking while the play went on. When that heart was led, East hopped up with his king.

This unusual second-hand-high play left South with no way to make his contract.

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader complains, "I opened one club in fourth seat. My opponents proceeded to bid and make four spades. My partner says I should have passed the hand out since my hand:

♠ x x ♥ A x x ♦ K x x ♣ A Q x x x had no defense against spades. The answer to our reader is that his hand qualifies as an opening bid in any and all systems. All opening bids don't lead to a profit. All he need know that year in and year out he will gain by opening that hand in any position, vulnerable or not.

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and writers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Fire danger not dampened

A spokesman from the Alameda County Fire Dept. said that recent rains will have no effect in reducing fire hazards and constant vigilance must be maintained.

"Another day in the 90's will wipe out any effects the rain had," the spokesman said. The above picture was taken of a grass fire shortly before the rains came.

Progress reported

Heritage Committee organized

PLEASANTON — After several attempts to officially form a Heritage Committee in conjunction with the bicentennial celebration, the committee is fully organized and progressing with great magnitude.

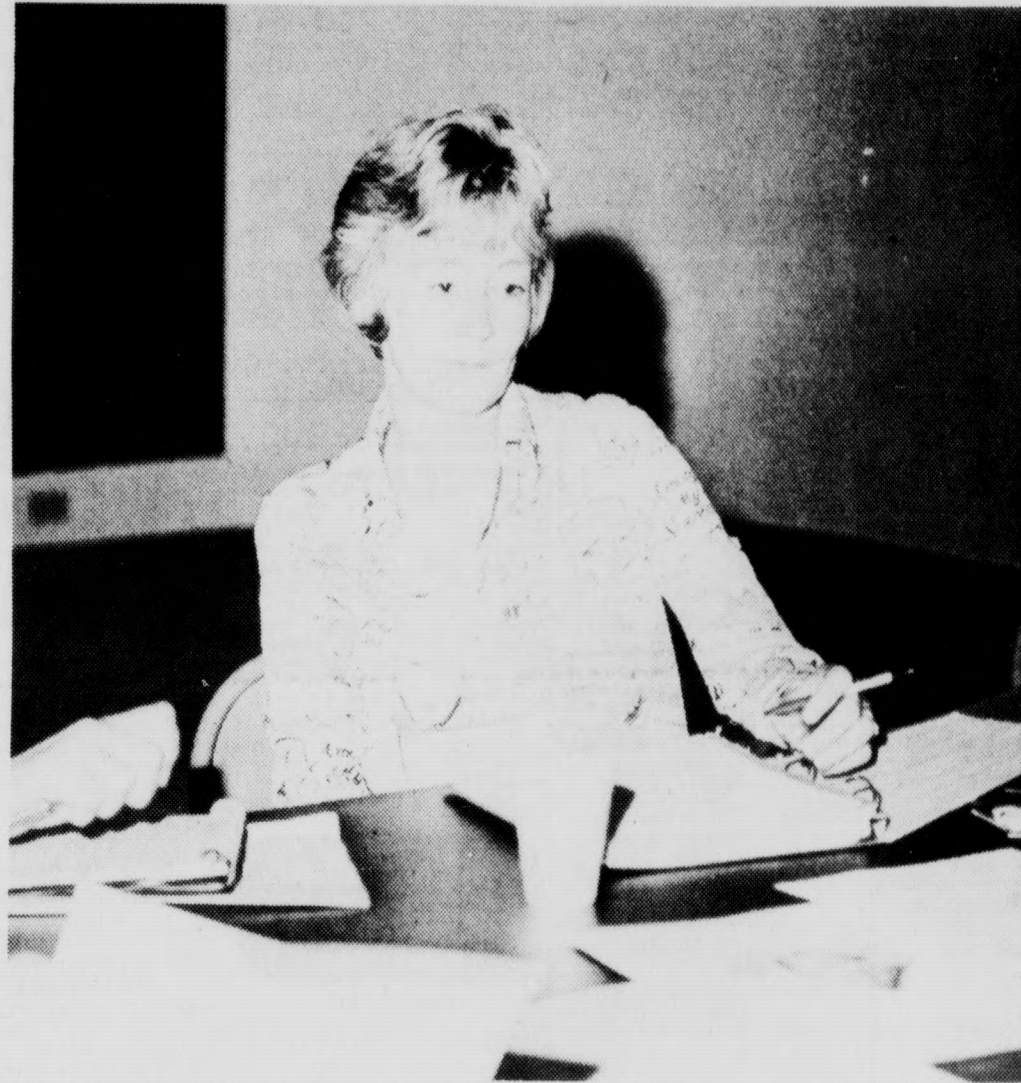

The committee represents a cross section of old and new residents of Pleasanton which gives it a good balance. Headed by Callie Heinbaugh as chairperson, it consists of Judy Haney, Bill Apperson, Dagmar Fulton, Loretta Lund, Verla Babbitt, Dorothy Davis, John Amaral, Linda Cooley, Lee Ann McFaddin and Sandy Sinclair.

Officially holding its first meeting on July 22, members have been meeting once a week with sub-committee meetings in between.

The group will place emphasis on reaching all age levels in the community with Pleasanton history, operate on a low focus, non-commercial basis and concentrate on quality of work rather than quantity.

Extensive study is presently being given to selecting historical site locations and plaques to be placed on the final selection of the landmarks. The project established by the main artery of the bicentennial, is a national endeavor since Pleasanton has been chosen as a National Bicentennial City.

The basic guidelines for selection of bicentennial historical sites are: the site significantly played a part in Pleasanton's development; longevity, that is, sites over 100 years old which meet the number one criteria should be considered first; the building need not exist on the site; sites which contributed to the ethnic population of the community and public sites which contributed to the ethnic population of the community and public sites should be considered over private dwellings.

Callie Heinbaugh new chairperson for the Heritage Committee pensively considers a point of discussion during a recent meeting with her committee.

The sub-committee worked up a list of 59 possible locations, have narrowed that list down to 29 priorities and the priority list will now be worked on to limit the number of sites chosen. The exact number of selections to be labeled as "historical sites" has not yet been determined.

Title Insurance and Trust of Pleasanton will be conducting a title search on the homes ultimately decided upon as landmarks, going back into handwritten titles. They hope to have this project, free service to the committee, completed in three or four weeks.

Another project under consideration by the eager workers is to compose a book of Pleasanton history in simplicity so that it can be enjoyed and read by children as well as adults.

The "Heritage '76" committee welcomes any Pleasanton resident or persons living in the unincorporated area immediately surrounding the city limits and who share an interest in the committee's goals of placing Pleasanton in its historical perspective to California and the nation, re-examine the origins, values and meanings of Pleasanton and strive for authenticity in all activities conforming to the "Heritage" theme.

Further information is obtainable by calling Mrs. Heinbaugh at 846-8990 or attending the next meeting scheduled at Pleasanton City Hall on August 19 at 8 p.m.

To meet other recommendations of the jury an affirmative action program has been launched in all county departments, the report continues, to integrate women and ethnic minorities in higher jobs.

Supervisors, the report notes, already have approved adding four medical screening units in schools to ensure adequate immunization of five- and six-year-olds.
